YOUNG SPENCER MOTHER DIES OF HEART ATTACK

The Community of the small village of Spencer, was deeply shocked Tuesday evening when they learned of the sudden death of Mrs. Dean Roberts one of their residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts and family had lived in Spencer several years. Mr. Roberts is employed at the Rubberoid plant in Joliet and was working this week the 3 to 11 night shift. About seven o'clock that evening, Mrs. Roberts, who had always been in very good health, sent her little girl to get a neighbor, who upon entering the Roberts home found Mrs. Roberts on the porch floor. A physician was called who pronounced her dead, presumably of a blood clot.

Mrs. Roberts before her marriage in 1934 to Dean Roberts was Miss Margaret Corson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Corson of Urbana. She was 28 years old.

The body was removed to the home of Mr. Roberts parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Roberts in Mokena where funeral services were held Thursday morning with the Rev. B. R. Aman, pastor of the New Lenox Methodist church officiating. Burial was made in the family lot in the Yearsley cemetery at Urbana, Ill.

Besides her husband and parents, the deceased is survived by four children, Margery, Carrie, William and James, the latter being three months old, two sisters and one brother in Urbana.

Auto Thieves Busy At Orland

Automobile thieves operated in Orland Park Sunday night and stole the Ford automobile of Howard Spiess. The car had been parked alongside of 143rd street in front of the residence of Mrs. Joseph Creer. Four o'clock Monday morning the car was gone. Constable John Helenhouse of Orland Park was called and within 15 minutes had the report of the theft and a description of the car on the police radio and a radio station in Missouri picked up the message and broadcast it.

No trace has been found of the car. Wheel tracks showed where the car had been pushed and turned around. Even tho the car was locked, it is presumed the thieves gained entrance. The job had the appearance of having been done by professionals.

MRS. CHAS. ROSE NEW HEAD OF MOKENA PTA

The election of officers for the coming year resulted in the following: President, Mrs. Chas. Rose, vice president, Mrs. R. Geuther, Secretary, Mrs. J. Fox, Treasurer, Mr. Carl Wolter.

Frankfort Churches To Hold Union Services Good Friday

The Village of Frankfort and surrounding territory is again cooperating with the churches in preparing for a Union Service which during the past years has been such a blessing to this community.

The business men have again pledged not only to close their places of business during the service but also are planning to take an active part in the service.

The school children under the direction of Mr. Soucie have prepared posters and placed them in the store windows inviting the public to attend the services.

The services will be divided into six half hour periods giving those who cannot attend the entire service an opportunity to leave or enter without disturbing either the speakers or the special music.

Special music is being prepared by the choirs of the cooperating churches. The Sermons will be delivered by six local and visiting pastors, each speaking on Christ's reaction to one of the things which he saw as he hung bleeding and dying upon the cross.

As never before the world and its every member needs a saviour who can lead out of darkness into light and out of hatred and war into peace and happiness, and where if not upon the cross on Calvary's mount can we find this Saviour?

Will you not prepare to participate in this Union Service on Good Friday?

MOKENA PASTOR OFFICIATES AT SON'S WEDDING

A very pretty wedding took place last Saturday afternoon March 21 at 4 o'clock in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard T. Greene at Genesee Depot, Wis., when their daughter Dorothea Louise became the bride of Mr. Milton C. Mumford, youngest son of Rev. and Mrs. Manley J. Mumford of Mokena.

The service was performed in the living room of the home before a beautiful bower created with green ferns and white gladioli. Here the Rev. Mr. Mumford, father of the groom met the bridal party and performed the service. The bride was attended by the groom's niece, Miss Alice Mumford of Evanston and by the bride's younger sister and two cousins.

Mr. Ernest Lang of Evanston, friend of the groom was the best man.

Following the ceremony, which was witnessed by the immediate members of the two families, a large reception was held from 5 to 8 after which Mr. and Mrs. Mumford left for their new home in Washington, D. C. where the groom is employed in the Navy Department of the bureau of Navigation.

The bride is an alumnus of Smith college and the groom of the University of Illinois.

This is the 4th time the Rev. Mumford has united in marriage one of his children.

The wedding dinner was served preceding the ceremony and was attended besides the groom's parents, by his brother and family of Evanston and his sister Mrs. Walter Zwiger of Rockford.

MARLEY COUPLE HOLD OPEN HOUSE TO MANY FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Peterson

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Peterson celebrated their Golden wedding anniversary Sunday in their home. A buffet dinner was served at noon. Celebrating with them at the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Dale Peterson and son, of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Sass, Mrs. Millie Bundy, Minooka; Mrs. Lottie Clark, Aurora; Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Naden of Joliet, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hikes of Harrisburg, Pa.

Open House was held from one to five and seven to nine. Mrs. Harwood Stellwagon, Mrs. W. Bridges, Mrs. Mervin Moore and Mrs. Alphonse Kohl were in charge of the serving. Mrs. Fred Steinhagen, Mrs. Millie Bundy, Mrs. Edward Brain, Mrs. Mary Marshall, Miss Agnes Haley, Mrs. Fred Lauffer and Mrs. Arthur Lauffer poured. Mrs. Loren Sass was in charge of registration. Each guest was presented a gold leaf favor.

The attractively set table was centered with a huge golden wedding cake. On each side were gold tapers in crystal candelabra.

Mrs. Peterson wore an orchid corsage on her black velvet dress. Mr. Peterson wore a yellow rose boutonniere.

A mock wedding was a main event in the afternoon. Chas. Sass favored the group with a solo, Silver Threads Among The Gold. Mrs. Thos. Hagood dedicated and sang a song to the honored guests which she composed. Several selections were played on the saxophone by Wayne Peterson. Mrs. Arthur Lauffer read a poem entitled My Friends, and afterwards she presented the guests with a purse of money from the Marley people.

Over 200 guests were present from Aurora, Plainville, Yorkville, Minooka, Chicago, Oswego, Joliet, Morris, and nearby. The honored guests received many lovely gifts, flowers, and plants.

Green Garden Couple Observe Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Grasmeier of Green Garden celebrated their Golden wedding anniversary in their home Friday March 20.

Open house for them was held from two until four in the afternoon. At 6 o'clock a family dinner was served. In the evening more relatives gathered. Rev. Schrupp gave the honored couple a very inspiring message. They received many gifts and cards which they appreciated very much.

Mr. Grasmeier is the president of the Fire Insurance Co. of his locality and in honor of this eventful day received a telegram from the Company in Springfield, which gave him a big thrill. At midnight luncheon was served and everyone wishes the couple many more years of happy married life. A sister, Mrs. Betty Peterson and a brother of Mrs. Grasmeier and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hansen came from Minnesota to celebrate with them. Other nieces and nephews of Minnesota were also present.

Wabash Turns Down Suburban Service Petition

A number of Marley residents attended the transportation meeting held in the Orland Park High School gym last Friday night to hear the reports from a citizens committee relative to the contact made with the Wabash railroad regarding suburban train service from Chicago to Arsenal south of Manhattan.

Chairman Cowie of Palos Heights reported that he had been advised by telephone by the office of the assistant passenger agent of the Wabash railroad that inasmuch as the Wabash had junked the coaches of the suburban trains it had operated a number of years ago, and not having purchased any new rolling stock and not being able to do so, due to priorities, the Wabash would not consider any petitions for suburban service.

After hearing this report, Harry Crowley of the Palos Park Civic Club made a motion that the matter be taken up with the Illinois Commerce Commission and the motion was quickly seconded. A committee was immediately at work making plans to engage an attorney to prepare and present a brief before the commission setting forth all the data on the transportation problem involved.

Col. Sweet of the Elwood Ordnance plant was present and gave an interesting talk on the manufacture and use of substitute materials.

James Dooley, coordinator of the Chicago area Civilian Defense Council was present and spoke at length on the Civilian Defense program.

DEATH TAKES YOUNG GIRL AT MOKENA

At 5:30 last Saturday morning, March 21 death ended the short but happy life of Mary Elizabeth Rogers, the thirteen year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rogers, who lived south of Mokena at the Wolf Road bridge.

Mary was born in Chicago, Sept. 17, 1928 and when three weeks old for the good of her health, the family moved to Mokena. Mary who never walked, lived all her life in her wheel chair, playing with other children on the floor or ground in summer and was a patient sufferer who never complained. A teacher was sent to the home to guide Mary's education for four years and in that time she attained the 7th grade, having a very brilliant mind.

Besides her parents, she is survived by two brothers, Harry and Earl and her grandfather, Mr. John P. Lingenfelter of Canton, Ill.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon from a funeral home in Canton, with the Rev. Mr. Heuston, pastor of the Canton Christian church officiating. Burial was also in the same city.

Both Taken To Hospital Suffering Painful Injuries

Joseph Muldoon, aged 42 years and his wife Lou 38, both of New Lenox were struck by an automobile driven by Wm. C. Carroll of Joliet Saturday evening about 9:30 o'clock. The accident occurred on South Cedar Street near the Archie Corp store.

According to the story told by Mr. Carroll he was driving north on this street and when near the curve in the road in New Lenox, Mr. and Mrs. Muldoon who were walking south, suddenly stepped in front of his car and he could not avoid hitting them.

Mr. Muldoon suffered a broken nose, cuts and bruises while his wife sustained a fractured shoulder, a knee injury and lacerations. Both were taken to the Silver Cross hospital.

Two daughters of the injured couple did not know their parents had been injured and were in the hospital until Sunday morning. They had expected the parents to return home Saturday night and were surprised to learn the next morning that they were in the hospital.

Ruth Bellemore Weds Chas. Dale, Jr.

Miss Ruth Bellemore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bellemore of Bourbonnais, Route 1, and Charles Dale, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dale of Lockport, R. 1 were married Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the First Evangelical Church, Kankakee. The Rev. Dore N. Ester officiated.

The bride was attired in a Nile green wool suit with a beige hat and brown accessories. She wore a corsage of pink tea roses. Her attendant Miss Blanche Dale, a sister of the groom, wore a navy blue "redingote" dress with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow tea roses.

Serving the groom as best man was his brother Elwood Dale.

The members of the immediate families of the bride and groom were present at a dinner which was served after the ceremony in the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale will reside at 495 W. Station St., Kankakee, Ill.

Conrad Olson and Elwood Dale attended the wedding of Mr. Stanley Anderson of Newark and Dorothy Larson of DeKalb at DeKalb, Sunday afternoon March 22nd.

Tinley Park Schools To Present First Annual Music Festival

The first annual music festival is being planned by the teachers and the pupils of the schools of the area surrounding Tinley Park. Spring is to be the theme and the program will include the largest chorus of voices ever assembled in this area, singing songs of Spring. Dancing will be featured as well as singing by smaller groups from the various schools. As a special attraction Mr. Clarence Callahan, Assistant County Superintendent of Schools will sing as a solo, "In A Monastery Garden."

Children taking part come from the Tinley Park School, District 146, Forest Ridge School, District 142, Arbor Park School, District 145, School District 139, and School District 140. Approximately seven hundred children are enrolled in these schools.

The purpose of the annual music festival is to stimulate an appreciation for music and give to the children and the guests an enjoyment which can come only from music. In bringing together the children of these schools an experience of friendship will develop and they will have the opportunity to meet new people and have new experiences, so worthwhile in the lives of the young folks.

To Hold Bake Sale

The Ladies Aid Society of the Christ Lutheran church, Orland will hold a bake sale at Schmadeke's store at 2 p.m. April 4th.

up to the placing of Him on the cross. The program under way will take up events at the evening of the Crucifixion and carry them thru in real pageant form to the Tomb not opened by human hands, left empty, and climaxes with the grand assurance that Christ, who was dead, is truly alive again.

This pageant will use about thirty persons and each will be dressed in costume that is typical of the time of Christ. This is another great pageant you will not only enjoy, but will stir you and you will never regret having seen it.

'Yankee Doodle' Spirit Rekindled By Nation Pledged to Freedom

At the nation's Capitol to boost stamp and bond sales, Irving Berlin, songwriter, is shown (left) with Lucy Monroe, "The Star-Spangled Soprano," and Barry Wood, radio singer, as they looked over a copy of Berlin's latest song just before the community sing. Berlin's number was one of many that came out right after the war started. Unlike the tearful, sentimental ballads that characterized the last war, these were tough and snappy ones like, "To Be Specific, It's Our Pacific" and "You're a Sap, Mr. Jap."

The days of fervent patriotism have returned to give America a new "lift" after the apathetic 1920s and the distraught 1930s. For more than a year now, ever since the fall of France jerked us out of a national lethargy, America has been re-kindling the spirit of 1776—re-examining the glorious history that made her a great nation and putting her heart and soul to the task of defending freedom.

A few days ago the treasury department at Washington received a $100 check from a man who had won that amount at a movie bank night. He didn't want to buy any savings bonds or pay his taxes—just wanted to help Uncle Sam.

At public gatherings throughout the country bathroom baritones are twisting the vocal chords around "The Star Spangled Banner" like they haven't done for more than 20 years. School children are putting unaccustomed vigor into their oath of allegiance to "the flag and the republic for which it stands," and movie goers find themselves applauding spontaneously when the President's face flashes across the screen.

In some respects it's like the wave of patriotism that spread across the land during the last great war, but sociologists are convinced that this time there's more grim determination and less hysteria—a cold and calculating resolve springing from a recognition that for the past 50 years the United States has done too much talking about preserving our way of life and has taken too little action to really preserve it.

Evidence of Seriousness. This atmosphere of seriousness is evident in the crop of new songs which popped up the first few weeks after Pearl Harbor.

Song publishers, who can detect a straw in the wind even before the breeze comes up, began making allowance more than a year ago for the new national emotional situation they sensed this war would produce. "God Bless America" was the first tip-off, inaugurating what might almost be called a "patriotic school" of tunesmiths unlike anything Tin Pan Alley had experienced before. And less than a week after the first Japanese bomb had fallen on unsuspecting Hawaii, the words-and-music boys were turning out "fight-in' mad" numbers like "They Started Somethin' (But We're Gonna End It)" and "Let's Put the Axe in the Axis."

"Maybe we'll get sentimental in a few months," a prominent publisher said recently, "but I doubt it. This time America is dead serious. Sales of patriotic music have gone up 40 per cent during the past few weeks and we expect them to keep asking for the standard numbers like "Star Spangled Banner" and "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

America's involvement in the war has actually heightened national interest in such normally peace-time activities as the far-flung Americanism program of the American Legion, designed to "foster and perpetuate a 100 per cent Americanism." One committee is working with local Legion posts to stimulate interest in physical education, health education and recreation, because a healthy America is a strong America. Projects like the $1,000 annual Lewis S. Rosenstiel award for outstanding community service, and the annual safe driving contest sponsored in co-operation with the Automotive Safety foundation, are all doing their part. Sponsorship of Boy Scout troops, junior baseball and essay contests are just a few of the commission's other activities.

'Glory of Being an American.' "We anticipate an even livelier interest among Legion posts in this type of work during the war," according to Homer L. Chaillaux of

Remember K-K-K-Katy?

She Was Nation's Gal
Remember the songs we were singing back in 1917? The sentimental ballads of yesteryear have little in common with today's stirring patriotic tunes. Almost everyone more than 10 years of age knew the words to "My Buddy," "Keep the Home Fires Burning," "Till We Meet Again" and "Just a Baby's Prayer at Twilight." On the lighter side we learned "K-K-K-Katy" and "How Ya Gonna Keep 'Em Down on the Farm." Barbershop quartets have kept the songs alive.

precedented impact. In addition to a fighting army of more than 7,000,000 men, the nation needs practically that many more people for air raid precautions work. Three million more men will be needed during the next year alone.

Another factor—mechanized warfare throws a harder punch at the civilian because it deprives him of commodities he's come to regard as necessities. There's plenty of food this time, fortunately, but no new tires for your automobile—indeed, new automobiles are no longer available. Aluminum frying pans have become instruments of war and plastics once made into phonograph records are now being used for tank gears and instrument pan-

He's Convinced

Americanism is the job of Homer L. Chaillaux, national chairman of the Americanism commission of the American Legion. Watching growing interest among fellow Legionnaires in community betterment projects since the war began, Chaillaux is convinced the war has produced a deeper sense of responsibility in the average American.

els. You can't even use your telephone as much as you used to, because total war requires mobilization of all available communication facilities.

The situation is pretty well summed up in our attitude toward propaganda. In the last war, public opinion was whipped up from the start by motion pictures bearing such titles as "The Kaiser, Beast of Berlin" and "To Hell with the Kaiser." This time Hollywood is concentrating on two entirely different objectives. First, they're providing entertainment for soldiers at camps, and giving the public relaxation from war duties. Second, they're turning out educational short subjects to improve morale, to instruct new soldiers in various phases of warfare and familiarize civilians with their defense responsibilities.

In short, the determination is already present. America knows she has a job to do, and needs no shot in the arm to do it!

This pretty Stephens college co-ed at Columbia, Mo., is also in step with the rest of the nation as far as purchasing defense stamps is concerned. Her patriotic zeal, though, assisted by some clever handiwork, surpasses that of most fellow Americans and classmates. She has made a flag out of her stamps. Sorry, this newspaper doesn't know her name.

Darwin, Australia, 'Way Down Under,' Is a Modern, Busy City

Darwin, bombed by the Japanese, heretofore has been considered Australia's backdoor. But it is a front door now from the troubled world to the north. Darwin has been described as a small town of less than 5,000 inhabitants with the appearance of an early mining town.

Australians explain Darwin as the victim of the tropics and transients. Its excellent harbor gave it birth, but, as the best port on Australia's north coast, the sailors give it color.

The majority of Darwin's better homes on the outskirts stand high above the ground on stilts of ironwood or concrete posts as a protection against termites. Life is lived for the most part on the shuttered verandas surrounding the houses, of which the open rooms are a part. Only a dressing-room and a bathroom are entirely enclosed. The almost unbearable heat at 12 degrees south of the Equator is relieved somewhat by cool breezes.

Darwin is the capital of the Northern Territory which covers a half million square miles of sparsely settled, wild country. During the long dry season this region has a scorched appearance. With the rains of the wet season, when the luggers come into port to lie up, the country blossoms almost overnight in scarlet poinciana, frangipani, Japanese honeysuckle, and many flowering trees, according to a National Geographic bulletin.

Holdup Victim Awakes Garbed in His Undies

CINCINNATI.—Julian Gray reported to police the theft of his overcoat and the suit he had been wearing. Three Negroes stopped him, he said. One of them hit him. A man saw him ducking in and out of alleys, as he attempted to continue toward his home, and lent him a pair of trousers, Gray said.

War and D. Cupid Speed Courtship

Draft Board Solves Problem For Young Lovers.

NEW YORK.—He was a young medical student and she was a secretary. They were in love and eager to marry. Common sense told them they should wait until he had finished his schooling.

That was three years ago. Last June John finished medical school. His internship was still ahead of him—long hours, meager pay. But the selective service act had been passed and the country was preparing for war.

He went to his draft board and put the problem before them. They told him to marry. And so John and Frances were married. He began his internship and she continued working, paying the rent for their two-room apartment out of her salary.

Then the country went to war. Now John and Frances are facing an even more important problem. Shall they have a baby although it means John won't be there when the baby arrives? What if John doesn't come back? Who is going to take care of the baby? How much family life can they contemplate? Shall they be satisfied with what they have or shall they carry on as if nothing were going to happen?

This is just one of the many problems confronting young people as 1942 approached.

"The whole cycle of getting acquainted, falling in love, getting married, is a matter of weeks now instead of months or years as it was during the depression," Evelyn Mills Duvall, director of the Association for Family Living of Chicago, said.

Britain's Paralysis Ends, Thanks to German Bomb

WINGHAM, ENGLAND.—Paralyzed and bedridden for 10 years, William Albert Bowden, 54, is up and about again, and once more looking for a job—thanks to a bomb.

Bowden became paralyzed after a long illness. Then, for the rest of his 10 years' martyrdom, it was only in fine weather that he could sit in a bathchair outside his home or be wheeled about the village.

Then came the blitz. As Bowden lay in bed, the house was shaken by a bomb which exploded near-by. And all of a sudden, he felt what he described as a "tap" down his spine, and in a moment he was bathed in perspiration.

"I did not say anything about it to my wife," he said, "but the next afternoon I had another experience of this tapping at my spine."

"It became more frequent and finally felt like pins and needles in my back."

"Then came the most wonderful moment of all—I could feel movement in my legs."

"In 10 days I was able to use my feet and legs again."

She Threads Root Hairs With Microscope Help

AUSTIN, TEXAS.—Finer than any thread and any needle's eye ever handled by woman are the root hairs and capillary needles used by Prof. Hilda Rosene.

She has just done a threading job at the University of Texas that will place her name in scientific records for all time. The threads are the fine white hairs seen on some roots.

They are so slender that in mass they appear like bits of mist. She has separated them individually and threaded them separately into capillary glass tubes that are so small the work has to be done under a microscope.

The tubes contain water. Her experiment proves that the business of these root hairs is to absorb water. For 250 years the scientific world had assumed that the hairs were for water absorption but no one ever proved it before, probably because the job was too difficult.

Additionally, this proof promises to be the first step in some new, important scientific experiments in the electrical properties of these root hairs. Without her threading technique the experiments could not be done.

Dead in This War Fewer By Millions Than in Last

NEW YORK.—Military losses in the present war have been much less than those in the corresponding period of the last war, according to a report by statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

From the beginning of the present war to the end of 1941, deaths in the armed forces of all the belligerent nations probably reached at least 1,500,000 to 1,750,000 and may exceed 2,000,000, according to the statisticians, as compared with 5,000,000 men killed in the corresponding period between July, 1914 and the end of 1916.

Predict European Conflict Will End in Fall, 1943... Timing
Kimmel and Short's
Court Martial...

WASHINGTON.—How long the war will last is perhaps the most vital question to every man, woman and child in America, always assuming that we KNOW the answer to an obviously more vital question: "Who is going to win?"

Most of the answers to the first have been very discouraging. They run from three to ten years, everybody, from Roosevelt and Churchill down, assuming that we are going to be on the receiving end of attacks during most of the present year.

But two men in Washington, whose voices have been listened to with more and more respect as the war has developed, have a more cheerful view. Unfortunately the writer cannot name them. If he could, the words of either, alone, in this connection would make the front page of every newspaper from Eastport, Maine, to San Diego.

Both are predicting now that the war in Europe will end by the fall of 1943!

Both men know their Europe intimately. One is best known as a diplomat and the other as an economist, but both base their opinion as to how long the war will last on economic and morale factors. In a nutshell, neither thought any part of Europe can stand another winter of this war without cracking, and this includes Germany.

The economist was telling friends, last fall, that he thought Germany would crack in the fall of 1942. He changed his view after Japan's initial victories. He now thinks the hope given the Germans by Japan's successes against both the British and the United States will postpone the crackup—perhaps through one more winter. But the German people, he insists, will not be able to face winter on top of that.

Depends on Nazi Offensive

The diplomat is actually a little more optimistic than the economist. He is still talking about all Europe cracking in nine months, which brings us to the fall of 1942. He concedes, however, that it is possible, especially if the Nazis should make a successful offensive this summer and the Jap successes should continue in the Southwest Pacific, that the Germans might stand one more winter. But NEVER two, he insists.

Both men admit the war is just as hard if not harder on most of the other people in Europe as it is on the Germans. But the other peoples of Europe have very little to say about it. All this leaves out the British, but there is no question about what they will do, so far as continuing to fight is concerned.

The diplomat's version is that the Germans will crack THIS fall, and that the job of the United Nations then will be to concentrate on Japan, which, he figures would be just a question of time after the German menace is removed.

Both think Russia would be eager to remove the Japanese threat in the Far East once and for all, and that Stalin's air power, hitting the Japanese both in China and in their home islands, would make that phase of the war a mopping up operation.

All of which is presented because of the writer's high opinion of the judgment of the two men cited, plus the fact that it is a little more cheerful than the actual war news!

Three Clashing Opinions Concerning Officers' Trials

There are three violently clashing opinions about the timing of the court martials of the army and navy commanders held responsible for the Pearl Harbor debacle.

The most generally held is that the trials of Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short and Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel should be postponed until after the war.

The second is that it would be cruel to the officers and their families to keep them under such a cloud—considering possibly that a court martial might hold them guiltless—for what may be a very long period.

The third is a combination of the motives actuating both the other groups, and would provide for a secret court martial, so that the defense would be able to present all sorts of testimony, or argument, which for strategic reasons should not be made public.

In his defense of his own conduct of the war, it will be recalled, Churchill laid a great deal of the responsibility for the fall of Hongkong and Singapore on Pearl Harbor. He mentioned also, of course, the loss of the Prince of Wales and Repulse, and left the clear implication that if it had not been for those two disasters, both of which, air-minded critics allege, are directly due to the conviction of so many admirals that airplanes could not sink battleships, the whole story of the Southwest Pacific operations might have been very different.

DEEP WATER ISLAND

by ALAN LEMAY

W-N-U-RELEASE

INSTALLMENT SEVENTEEN

THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Water-son, believing herself to be the heir to Alakoa, the island estate of her grand-father, finds herself no heiress at all, when the old gentleman, Garrett Water-son, turns up after a long disappearance. Meantime she and her lawyer have been engaged in a dispute over the rights to the property with the Wayne family, who have been in possession since the old man left, many years before. Richard (Tonga Dick) Wayne has fallen in love with Karen, as has also the lawyer, John Colt. After a quarrel with Dick, Karen decides to leave Alakoa with Colt. Old Garrett Water-son has arrived at Alakoa and is very ill with fever but ex-presses a wish to see Karen. Dick gathers a crew, overtakes Karen and Colt and argues with their ship's pilot, Ramey, to turn back. Ramey refuses, saying he can bring piracy charges against Dick. Now continue with the story.

"Such as will get you laughed out of the Islands. It's too bad, but those will have to wait. Turn your boat, Ramey."

"Hold your course as you go," Colt ordered.

"Are you going to turn, or not?" "And what if I don't?" Ramey jitted.

"The Holokai has orders to come alongside, lash fast, and board, in just about another two minutes. You can turn your boat, or my crew will turn your boat, I don't care a damn which."

"He's bluffing," Colt said. "Hold your course, and I promise—"

"No, he isn't," Ramey whim-pered. The little one-eyed skipper looked as if he were going to break down and cry. "I wouldn't put it past him to do it, by God! And if those crazy-headed Kanakas of his start running wild—"

"You won't like that, will you? Well—here they come!"

The Holokai was swinging nearer now; by her deck lights they could see Dick's Kanakas, eager at the rail.

"Oh, dear God in heaven!" Ra-mey blubbered.

The Seal turned back.

CHAPTER XV

Whatever else Dick Wayne ac-complished or failed to accomplish by bringing the unhappy Seal back to Alakoa, that extravagant gesture undoubtedly saved the life of old Garrett Water-son.

The Seal's anchor was no more than down when Dick took Karen aboard the Sarah. Dick and Karen still had nothing to say to each other; so that Dick had no way of knowing what was going on in her mind. It seemed to him that she was timid, but also a little eager; and, in the face of his supposition that she had left Alakoa in prefer-ence to facing her grandfather, he found this surprising.

At first it seemed that they were too late. Garrett Water-son was mumbling weakly from the depths of a fever haze; he recognized no one, and could not be made to un-derstand that the person Dick had brought him was the granddaughter whom he had never seen. When finally he was persuaded to fix his eyes upon her in what appeared a moment of clarity, the effect was worse than as if he had not seen her at all.

"I won't talk to you," he said, his words suddenly strong and distinct. "I'm positively not interested in any further marine insurance. I've told you before, I do not wish to discuss insurance in any way."

Tears came into Karen's eyes as she turned to Shimazu. "You're the doctor? Do you think he's going to die?"

"What I cannot understand," said Shimazu, "is why he is still alive at all."

Karen's eyes darted about the smothering confusion of the little cabin. "We'll have to move him out of here to some place where he can be taken care of. This place isn't even clean."

"You can't move him," Stahlquist said from the door; "he would fight."

"It would be dangerous," Shimazu agreed. "I would be afraid to move him now."

"Then we'll have to do the best we can here," Karen said. She took off her hat and tossed it aside. "Will somebody have my things sent over from the Seal?"

"What are you going to do?"

"I'm going to find some way to get some air in here. And then I'm going to clear up this litter. There aren't even any sheets on that bed. The doctor will have to tell me what else a nurse is supposed to do."

"You can't change anything in here," Stahlquist said pessimistic-ally. "He'll fight like hell. This is a terrible old man; pretty near every-body's afraid of him, but me."

"I'm not afraid of him," Karen said. "I'm going to take care of him."

That was the beginning of a week that seemed a long time for them all. In the face of a good deal of discouragement Karen persisted in doing just what she had said she would. She moved onto the Sarah and stayed there, and somehow she persuaded Garrett Water-son to sub-mit to the care which no one had ever been able to force on him be-fore.

Colt fumed and paced upon the Seal; Ernest and Willard Wayne were in Honolulu; and Dick Wayne sulking aboard the Holokai, hardly leaving it at all.

"All right, all right," Dick said. "I'll go to Nuku Hiva." "Have to go myself," Water-son insisted.

On the bay of Alakoa the three factors of the John Colt-Dick Wayne-Karen Water-son triangle—each of them established in lonely and fool-ish grandeur on his own boat—were suspended in a deadlock which only could be broken, apparently, by ei-ther Garrett Water-son's recovery or his demise.

Dick saw to it that the Sarah was provided with everything that Karen or Dr. Shimazu wanted, but he hardly ever went aboard her himself. When he did go aboard, Karen Water-son avoided him; and when this was not possible she still managed to disregard him so com-pletely that he was left with a curi-ous feeling of not being in existence any more. Reports on Garrett Wa-ter-son's condition were encourag-ing, but Dick found that they did not interest him much.

Dick Wayne was rapidly drifting into a state of mind where nothing interested him at all. Honolulu was pestering him to come there for the reading of James Wayne's will, and there was nothing to prevent his going; but he stayed where he was, for no more reason than that it seemed too much trouble to go any-where else. Ernest Wayne tried to talk to him from Honolulu on the wireless phone, but Dick did not go ashore to take the call. He let his days drag out in a morose inactiv-ity, chiefly filled in with innumera-ble games of solitaire in the cabin. Yet at night he was unable to sleep.

For a day or two he drank heav-ily, in the hopes that it would make him sleepy, but it did not; and when the Holokai's liquor ran out he did not bother to have it replenished. He stayed away from Karen Water-son, trying to accustom himself to the idea of a world in which, for him, she did not exist; for he knew what was the matter with him well enough.

Ramey came to see him in the middle of the week, driven by a need of supplies. Now that it was apparent that the return of the Seal to Alakoa had resulted in a length-ening of John Colt's charter, the Seal's one-eyed skipper seemed to hold no grudge.

"I'll send you your engine oil," Dick said, "if you'll tell me one thing."

"Like what?" Ramey asked du-biously.

"I'd kind of like to know," Dick said, "where Colt and Miss Water-son were going, and what for, the night I had to come out and fetch you back."

"Oh, is that all?" Ramey grun-ted. "Why, they was going to Hono-lulu to get married."

"So that was it." He managed a faint, sardonic grin. "She certainly had a busy evening."

"Huh?"

"Let it go," Dick went back to his solitaire.

When the week had stretched on into ten days it was known that Garrett Water-son, definitely, was going to live. The tremendous vitality of the old man had asserted itself once more. When this was conclu-sively evident, even to the unbe-lieving Shimazu, Dick knew that Karen would not be at Alakoa much longer.

He knew that he ought to try to interest himself in something—any-thing, to overcome the lethargy upon which he was stranded; but it took the departure of John Colt to get him into half-hearted action.

The Seal moved out of the bay of Alakoa unostentatiously one morn-ing at daybreak. She blundered her way through the shoals by means of the curious luck which seemed to follow Ramey no matter what folly he committed, and eased off around the east point of the island roughly in the direction of Honolulu. No-body on the Holokai knew the mean-ing of this at first. It was hours before they knew definitely that Colt had gone back to Honolulu on the Seal—but that Karen Water-son was still aboard the Sarah.

Dick's curiosity was sufficiently aroused by this to cause him to row all the way over to the Sarah—a dis-tance of some two hundred yards—for a visit with the convalescent old man. He tried to conceal from him-self his reason for wishing to talk to Water-son, but he could not. He was aware of a weak but persistent hope that something had happened to cause John Colt and Karen Water-son to break up; and he wanted to find out from Garrett Water-son if this might be the case.

Karen Water-son was taking an hour ashore, so that her grandfather was alone. He was propped up on clean pillows, smoking a cigar which he had probably taken this oppor-tunity to steal; and though he looked feeble, and somehow chastened, he was surprisingly himself.

"Where the hell have you been?" he demanded gustily, in what was evidently meant to be a roar.

"You've got to get me out of this!"

That Garrett Water-son was no-tably tamed in spirit needed no more proof than his concession that he needed any help from anybody; but other evidence was not lacking. Such a change had taken place in Garrett Water-son's quarters as Dick would not have believed. All the great litter of charts and miscel-laneous duffel had disappeared; even the bulkheads, which had been a scalling and ancient green, had been scraped and painted white.

"We've got to go to Nuku Hiva," Garrett Water-son announced, "and we've got to go now. This fool Jap doctor and this girl of mine don't understand."

The old man, it now appeared, had worked himself into a state of mind. Dick knew enough about Garrett Water-son's scattered and loose-knit affairs to know why he thought he had to go to Nuku Hiva. Once the old man had purchased an option on a site for a wharf, or something of the sort. Then he had forgotten about it, only to remember it sud-denly and inauspiciously just as the option was about to run out. Dick did not believe that either Water-son or Nuku Hiva needed a wharf, but it was no use arguing, he sup-posed.

"If we don't take that thing up by the first of the month," Water-son declared, "that English outfit will get in there, and the opportunity of a lifetime will go up in smoke—just like that!" He blew a blast of smoke at Dick to illustrate what was going to happen to the opportunity of a lifetime, and it made him cough, so that he spilled cigar ashes on the highly scrubbed deck.

"All right, all right," Dick said. "I'll go to Nuku Hiva."

"Have to go myself," Water-son insisted.

"You'll stay here," Dick said, "or I'll have nothing to do with the business at all. Then where will you be?"

The old man finally had to be sat-isfied with that. Not until the long digression about lifetime opportuni-ties in Nuku Hiva was settled, was Dick able to raise the question which had really brought him here.

He put out a tentative feeler. "I see John Colt has gone back."

"So I hear."

"It's none of my business," Dick said, "but I'd kind of like to know why he should be rushing back to Honolulu while Karen is still here."

"I sent him back," Garrett Wa-ter-son said complacently.

"You sent him back?"

"He was over here with some scoundrelly proposition, whereby I was supposed to throw in with him, and we were supposed to get the island of Alakoa away from the Waynes. He made me kind of mad. Seemed that all I had to do was offer proof that I'm out of my mind—that gets us the islands back. I told him to get to hell out. I told him if he wasn't out of the bay in twelve hours I was going to have my crew grab him and keel-haul him. I guess he must have taken me literal."

"But Karen is going to stay with you?"

"I'd like her to; but she says not. I believe she'll be following Colt to Honolulu directly."

"Following Colt?"

"She's kind of a little poker face," Garrett Water-son complained. "It's past me to make out what she's go-ing to do. But if you want my pri-vate personal opinion. I think she's going to marry the guy."

Dick managed to say, "How are you going to like that?"

THE TRANSFIGURED CHRIST MEETS HUMAN NEED

LESSON TEXT—Luke 9:28-43a.

GOLDEN TEXT—And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God.—Luke 9:43.

Glory and grace go together. Spirituality finds meaning in serv-ice. Holiness is faith in action. Every fine emotion should be trans-lated into conduct.

This is the message of our lesson as it presents the transfigured Christ and the disciples, moved beyond in-telligent words by His transcendent glory, going forth into the valley to meet the need of demon-ridden hu-manity.

I. Amazing Glory (vv. 28-36).

To three of the disciples came the privilege of seeing in the mount the outshining of the deity of Christ through the humanity of His flesh in such amazing glory that Peter could think of nothing more wonder-ful than to prolong the experience by tarrying in the mount.

One could wish that it were pos-sible in presenting this lesson to get over into the thinking of those who read or hear, a proper conception of the glory of our Christ, but words seem to be such weak and in-sufficient instruments. One would cry out—"Look at Him—the Son of God with the transfigured face—and the light of heavenly glory shining forth in a dazzling whiteness" (lit-erally, like lightning).

If men would only look upon Him, they would see how untrue are those who take from Him His deity, who speak of Him as only a good man or a great teacher. He, our Saviour, who took upon Himself the limita-tion of our flesh, was and is eternally God.

Significant it is to note that with Him on the mount were Moses and Elijah. The former had died (Deut. 34:5, 6) and the latter had been translated without death (II Kings 2:11), but both were alive, recog-nizable, intelligent, interested in the redemptive work which Christ was to work out on the cross (v. 31). This definitely denies such false theories as soul-sleep or annihilation at death.

But the vision of glory becomes a means of blessing as we see

II. Amazing Grace (vv. 37-43a).

Like Peter, there are many folk who think that the thing to do is to remain on the mountaintop, just en-joying the vision of glory and the delightful fellowship of Christ and the redeemed. They do not learn such things from Christ or from the Word of God. The next day (v. 37) He and the disciples met the cry of an anguished father whose boy was possessed of a demon and who had found no help (v. 40). Look then upon the one whose unspeakable glory has just been revealed in the mount, who has just had the ap-proval of God the Father (v. 35), who now in amazing grace meets the need of this humble child! There is the grace of God, manifest in the One whom we as Christians profess to follow. Let us like Him bring the glory of God and (in His name) the power of God to bear upon the need of men.

It seems to the writer of these notes that God is waiting to do a new thing in the midst of human suffering and sorrow—working through His disciples. We need first of all to know Him ourselves, as our own Saviour and Lord. Then we need a vision of His glory, flooding our souls and transforming our lives (Rom. 12:1, 2). Then, we must put that glory and that power to work through our lives. The one who fol-lows Christ cannot be satisfied to rejoice in his own salvation and not reach out to win others. He cannot rest in the peace of soul which Christ gives and not put forth his hand to those who struggle in "life's wild restless sea." He must (as Matt. 5:16 puts it) let his light so shine in the darkness that men may find their way to the Father's house and thus glorify the name of God.

God does His work in the world through redeemed men and women. He is always seeking those who, having seen the glory of Christ and with His grace upon them, are ready to be used of the Holy Spirit for His glory. "What the church needs today is not more machinery or better, not new organizations or more novel methods, but men whom the Holy Ghost can use—men of prayer, men mighty in prayer. The Holy Ghost does not flow through methods but through men. He does not come on machinery, but on men. He does not anoint plans, but men" (E. M. Bounds).

Need Compassion

I do not know how any Christian service is to be fruitful if the serv-ant is not primarily baptized in the spirit of a suffering compassion. We can never heal the needs we do not feel. Tearless hearts can never be the heralds of the Passion. We must pity if we would redeem. We must bleed if we would be the ministers of the saving blood.—J. H. Jowett.

7 ways to save money on your home laundry

Even "old hands" at home laundry, with the most modern equipment, are now remembering ways of saving money that suddenly have become important.

Check up on your own laundry method—faithfully observe these seven points. Your expense will be less—and your laundry perhaps even whiter!

1 Few clothes need boiling.

Proper laundry methods will keep clothes white without boiling, thus saving the hidden costs in this extra step. Boil only baby clothes, handkerchiefs, and sickroom linens.

2 Learn exactly how much is a tubful.

Too many clothes slow down the water action and drag on the motor, too few clothes increase the number of tubfuls. A 7 to 12 minute washer run is usually long enough.

3 Watch the water level.

Water above the marked water level may strain the motor or overflow into the gears.

4 Always loosen wringer tension.

When wringer is not in use, tension should be released to avoid flat spots on rubber rollers.

5 Lubricate every 6 months.

Read direction sheet carefully, lubricate gears and motor at least twice a year.

6 Dampen clothes carefully.

An even distribution of moisture means faster ironing. Use bottle with perforated metal top, sprinkle with warm water (spreads more evenly).

7 Study fine fabrics.

Lengthen the life of your clothes by learning the special methods of laundering silks and woolsens. These facts can be obtained from our Home Service Department.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY of Northern Illinois

Farmers War Board Set Up In Cook Co.

A farmers' War Board has been set up in Cook County composed of Carl Bormet, chairman of the AAA as chairman, C. A. Hughes, Farm Adviser, Vice chairman, Charles Erickson and E. O. Hopperstead. At a recent meeting of this War Board, March 12, 1942, the following items were considered and are respectfully called to the attention of farmers and others in Cook County:

1. Scrap Iron: The War Board again calls the public's attention to the need of scrap iron by our war industries in the manufacturing of tanks, planes, and other implements of warfare, so badly needed by our armed forces. Should anyone know of a large stock of scrap that is being hoarded for increased prices, or old automobile graveyards in Cook Co., they are asked to communicate with the War Board so this material can be moved into production. Farmers are also requested to run through their scrap piles, save out scrap material and round pieces which can probably be used and dispose of the balance of the iron to dealers, or any way to get it on the market.

While there may not be more than a few hundred pounds of scrap on each farm when all of this is added up for the county we will find that it amounts to a very large quantity and it should be in production sometime during this year. This is the time of the year when farmers have an opportunity to gather up their scrap.

2. Selective Service: Recently Paul Armstrong, the State Director of the Selective Service, has seen fit to ask all Boards to hold up agricultural registrants and asked for a questionnaire for re classification. The public should be made to understand that this is not any favor to farmers as a class. It is intended to locate key men on farms that are producing sizeable quantities of surplus food that will move into market channels. It is a realization that they cannot be replaced by inexperienced help even though such help were available. Agricultural selectees are advised to fill out these questionnaires carefully so as to give the Boards an exact picture of the situation on their farms and the selectee's ability for handling machinery and livestock and to supervise other workers that may not be so efficient.

3. Labor Situation: The agricultural situation is going to be bad in 1942 and we may expect it to be much worse in 1943. Two labor offices will be set up in the county, one in the Blue Island Farm Bureau office, and one in the Arlington Heights Farm Bureau office. The labor that will be secured will largely supplement the extra work that the farmers generally will do this year and farmers must expect that in a large measure this labor is not going to be wholly satisfactory. It is anticipated that Mexican labor, and foreign labor from the city, will be made available this year but with the higher prices being paid by industries a great deal of this labor may disappear. While an effort is going to be made to get high school boys from the suburban towns on farms farmers are going to be asked to be as tolerant of this type of labor as they can. The War Board interviewed a number of farmers on this question and their attitude is that out of this labor will come a number of boys who are anxious to do their share in the national defense effort and with a little consideration on the part of the farmers they will be able to do some work this year. Next year they will be more valuable. Probably these boys will work out better for doing hand work on vegetable farms. They can be used from the suburban towns a few hours in the afternoon after school, and from some high schools they can be used throughout the growing season. An effort is going to be made to show these boys that they must not expect too much pay since they are not able to do a great deal of work and it will take some of the farmer's time in watching and showing them how to do various jobs on the farm. In meetings held with the principals of a number of the suburban schools War Board representatives have requested that they be allowed to meet with boys and girls expecting to do farm work so they may impress upon them that this is not to be considered a vacation in any sense at all and that when they do work on farms they must be serious about these jobs and prepared to expect the difficulties and inconveniences of working on farms.

4. Lack of rubber bands: The lack of rubber bands is going to be an inconvenience to vegetable farmers in particular this year. Already many packages are tied with string that formerly were tied with rubber bands. The market is going to be approached by the members of the War Board in an effort to get them to accept certain commodities, such as asparagus in bulk. It is realized that it is going to take more time to tie with string than with rubber bands but apparently there is no opportunity to secure the amount of rubber that Cook Co. would use this year for such purpose.

5. Lastly, the War Board wishes to call the attention of our farmers, as well as other citizens, that the next year or two are going to be trying as our citizens are deprived of many conveniences that they have enjoyed as a matter of course. Differences in opinions that we may have had in the past should be laid aside. Every possible concentrated effort given towards producing as much as we possibly can turn out from our farms.

We must keep in mind that practically the whole world has ceased to produce foodstuffs and is now not far from a point of starvation. Could shipping be provided the surplus milk that is piling up in condenserries soon would move out and we would be at a point of milk shortage at the present time. Therefore, farmers are called upon to do their part which is to produce food. We do not feel that our farm women are necessarily called upon to engage in a number of the war activities that various townswomen are engaged in because they have the problem of looking after a part of the livestock as a rule, feeding men, and many of them work in the fields. Many farm women have expressed a feeling of uneasiness because they are not going to take part in some of the work that townswomen are performing.

The War Board wishes to call the attention to farm women and towns women that farm women usually have many extra duties to perform and because of the shortage of labor this year many of them will be taking the place of farm help in the fields.

The War Board has been called on by some Selective Service Boards for assistance in appraising the agricultural situation in the county and they have been called on by the State Director to render such service. The War Board has indicated their willingness to be of service to the Selective Service Boards.

Lincoln Estates

Dorothy Fedak

Mrs. Anna Bodong, age 68 years, a well known and loved resident of the Lincoln Estates, died March 14th and was buried from St. Mary's church, Mokena March 17.

She devoted a great deal of her time in the service of St. Wilfred's Chapel. Well spoken were the words of Rev. Fr. Arthur on the day of her funeral: "She lived only for God and not for earthly riches."

She is survived by her husband and three children, Jimmy, Ellen and Ed. Many of her friends from the Lincoln Estates attended her funeral.

Ralph Siegal visited with Walter Niedringhaus a week ago Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Metz visited with Mr.

and Mrs. Gill over the week end.

Benny Lockwood has been home on leave from the Navy.

All the children from the Ann Rutledge school came to see Benny, and insisted that he visit Mrs. Walker, his former school teacher.

Loretta Moeven visited in Lincoln Estates over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Pickford and daughter Marcia spent Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lockwood.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McLean of Joliet spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McLean.

Mrs. Frances Mesehler is in St. Joseph's hospital recovering from a nervous breakdown.

Joy Jones was confirmed in the Frankfort Methodist church last Sunday.

Guests at the J. Fedak home last Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. J. Klose and family, Mr. and Mrs. Y. Lesner and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. Bartnik and son Bobby and Miss Victoria Bartnik.

Easter Sunrise Services To Be Held Thruout Nation

Prominent Easter Sunrise services throughout the nation were outlined today by the touring bureau of the Chicago Motor Club.

Charles M. Hayes, club president, says that services in Soldier Field at 6:30 Easter morning will attract the greatest attendance. The speaker this year will be Dr. Wm. L. Pettingill of Wilmington, Delaware. A chorus under the baton of Prof. Talmadge J. Bittkofer of Moody Bible Institute will furnish musical background.

In Springfield, Illinois, the Council of Churches, together with the Junior Chamber of Commerce, plan Sunrise Services at Lake Springfield. The Municipal Choir and the a capella choir of Springfield High School will participate.

Among the several services to be conducted in Indiana, the two which attract greatest attendance are in Indianapolis and Marion. In the state capitol, carol services are held at Mounment Circle between 6:30 and 7:30 A.M. The city of Marion presents its sixth annual pageant in the Coliseum where 2,000 persons will appear in a portrayal of Our Lord's last week on earth. A chorus of 1,200 voices will provide musical setting.

A Civic Sunrise Service is to be held in the Blatz Temple of Music in Milwaukee. A massed chorus of several hundred voices will offer religious chants, and the principal speaker will be Rev. J. H. Walsh, pastor of the United Church.

War-time regulations may influence services on the nation's coasts, but many plan to continue as usual. Among the most noted in California is the service at Palm Springs where thousands of worshippers gather annually on the mountainside above Desert Inn as the sun reaches the white cross implanted there.

Other prominent Easter Sunrise Services are:

The Knights Templar services in Cleveland Public Hall, Cleveland, Ohio.

Garden of the Gods in Colorado, 6:30-7 A.M. MWT (to be broadcast over NBC.)

Mountain Lake Sanctuary near Lake Wales, Florida, 6 A.M.

15th Annual Service on Iroquois Park Hilltop in Louisville, Kentucky at 6:45 A.M.

13th Annual Easter Services in Baltimore Stadium, Baltimore, Maryland at 7 A.M.

Easter Sunrise Services in Minnesota Acacia Park, Minneapolis, Minnesota at 6:30 a. m.

Services conducted by the Metropolitan Church Federation at 6:30 A. M. in the Municipal Theatre, Forest Park in St. Louis.

Senator A. J. Bidwill Has Unique Record In His First Term

Few members of the General Assembly are as well known as Senator Arthur J. Bidwill of River Forest. He was first elected to the Senate in 1934, but after taking his seat and serving several months he was ousted and replaced by the opposition candidate without even the formalities of a recount. This created such a furor that it was discussed in newspapers for weeks. No effort was made to justify the move. The opposition had the votes and that was that.

It was a tough break for Mr. Bidwill but it gave him state wide publicity; everybody heard about him. Most folks felt that he had been given a raw deal. That is now history but it had its bright side for when Mr. Bidwill was elected four years later by a large majority he was no stranger when he went to Springfield. Everybody had heard about him. He was a marked man and with his personality it did not take long to turn casual acquaintances into personal friends.

This was a great help, for friends mean everything when it comes to getting a bill enacted into law. Few laymen have any conception of the routine involved in sponsoring a measure and nursing it through the legislature. A bill is first referred to some committee and it stays right there unless the sponsor is on the job to make sure it is reported out and that is easier said than done. The great majority of bills thrown into the legislative hopper are never even voted on in committee and there are many ways of stalling along, one of the favorite tactics is to refer it to a sub committee that may never get around to voting on it unless the time.

When a bill is finally reported on favorably, it is placed on the calendar and must be called twice before the Senate, or the House, votes on it and if it is carried it then goes to the other body where it must pass thru the same routine and over the same hurdles.

Most members of the General Assembly accomplish very little during their first term—it takes that long to get onto the ropes. As a matter of fact, very few senators or representatives have the friends, the tact and the persistence to become real leaders. The majority answer roll call, attend committee meetings and follow the party leaders in their voting. Their service is important and their record shows up favorably, but only a few are qualified to handle the important measures that come up at every session.

Senator Bidwill, now a candidate for a second term, has sat in on party councils, he was entrusted with many administration measures and put through every bill that he sponsored. That is an unusual record for any one to make in his first term. Arthur Bidwill has experience plus ability and is a recognized leader in Springfield. He is an ideal man to look after the varied interests of this far flung district.

"KNOW YOUR PRESIDENTS"

★ ★ ★ ★ CONTEST ★ ★ ★ ★

MAYBE you didn't read about this fascinating new kind of contest. Maybe you did—and simply put off entering. Or maybe you just don't want $5,000 in one big, welcome check.

At any rate—you're not too late. Just get this Sunday's issue of The Chicago Sun—and step right in for your chance at these handsome cash prizes.

You'll find the first eight pictures all together—the eight that have already appeared in this exciting contest the folks are raving about.

"Easy," they say. Sure it's easy! So easy that every member of the family will have an equal chance to win. Educational! Every school boy and girl should enter. You'll learn things you didn't know—things you'll never forget about your own American Presidents. And that goes for fathers and mothers, too.

And where is the man or woman, boy or girl, who wouldn't know what to do with $5,000—$1,000—$500—or any one of hundreds of rich cash prizes?

You don't have to be a writer or a student or an expert at anything to enter this contest and win. You don't have to secure subscriptions. Your chance is exactly as good as the next.

You simply note the clues we give you—and write the President's name beneath the picture. Then follow the other simple instructions, given fully in Sunday's Chicago Sun.

It's not a long, drawn out contest. 31 days—31 Presidents—and some one will be $5,000 richer. That some one might be you!

Order your copy of Sunday's Chicago Sun now! And tell your newsdealer to deliver the Sun every day so you won't miss a single issue.

PROTESTANT NOVENA

The protestant Novena services of the Methodist church in Tinley Park, no longer are merely a novelty. They have been tried, and proved to be of value and help. Not only have the comments made been indicative of the high spiritual value, but the uplift the worshippers have experienced makes them want to keep up their regular attendance.

The general attendance has been better than many anticipated and is almost up to the Sunday morning number.

ORLAND PARK

The home of Dr. Linquist of Orland Park is the scene of much excitement these days. Last week he received two mountings of sail fish he caught while vacationing in Florida last December.

Dr. Linquist had phenomenal luck deep sea fishing in the Gulf stream and in the Atlantic Ocean. On Christmas day, his first venture in this sport, he hooked and landed a sail fish measuring 64 inches. On the following Sunday, he again landed a sail fish this one measuring 7 ft. 3 inches. He ordered both of these specimens mounted and his friends have eagerly been awaiting their arrival.

Among the game fishes of the southern seas, the sailfish has come to hold top rank. It is not only known for its great beauty, but also for its dash and spirit. It swims at an estimated speed of 50 miles per hour, and fights on the surface and in the air, performing the most amazing leaps, somersaults, tail spins and surface dances known to man. To catch one is indeed a fisherman's dream come true.

At a meeting of the executive board of the Orland PTA last Monday, arrangements were made for the purchase of a record player and public address system for use in the school gym. The major cost of this equipment will be paid from a fund which had been raised during Mrs.

Earl Reish's term as president and which had been set aside to be used for some purpose that would bring the most benefit to the greatest number of students. In addition to this fund, there is a sum realized from a concert arranged by Mrs. Adele Cooper last year and which was given by her to the school music fund for the purchase of phonograph records. The balance of the cost of the equipment, about $40.00 will be raised by some PTA project. This equipment can be used advantageously for both educational and entertainment purposes and should prove to be a valuable addition to the facilities of the school.

The Red Cross First Aid class, organized in connection with Civilian Defense, held its first meeting in the Orland Park school last Monday evening with an attendance of 54. Mr. Ralph Town is instructor of the class. At the first meeting he gave an outline of the course and spoke on some of the elementary features of First Aid. Text books will be on hand for the next meeting and the routine work of the course will then begin in earnest.

There is still time to enroll in this class. There is no cost connected with this course except the price of the text book which is 60c and a 10c cost of bandages. These classes will continue for 10 weeks or a total of 20 hours of instruction and all those satisfactorily completing this course will be given certificates of efficiency in First Aid by the Red Cross.

All who can arrange to do so and who have not already enrolled are urged to participate in the project. You can still be enrolled if you are at next Monday's class. Everyone is urged to be on hand promptly at 7:30 so that there need be no delay in starting class work.

Mrs. Garnet Slack, who has been visiting at the home of her sister, Mrs. Paul Oelke, has been called to Peoria where her daughter Miss Ann Sneider underwent an emergency operation last Monday.

Little David Morlock is suffering from a mild attack of Scarlet Fever and the Morlock home has been quarantined. Mr. Morlock is staying at the Paul Oelke home.

Word has been received from Owen Strong, son of Mrs. Clara Reilly, who is driving a Jeep for Uncle Sam at Ft. Lewis, Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. John Arnold have purchased the Kinney home on 143rd St. They expect to move into their new home Sunday.

Make a Delicious Spinach Ring With Leftovers
(See Recipe Below)

Conserving Food

As the quotation "Food will win the war and write the peace" gains prominence, homemakers all over the country are beginning to realize that they must do their part in making the most of the food at hand.

Your first step in conserving food will come when you plan your menus and shopping. If you are not in this habit, then start now to practice the true economy that comes only with this kind of planning. You will rarely have bits of leftovers that are difficult to fit into the menu if you provide a place for them.

Your second step in conserving food will come in proper storage. No matter how careful a shopper you are, if you do not provide the facilities that keep food from becoming decayed, wilted, or soiled, you will not have done your part.

Refrigerator Storage.
Milk, eggs, butter, cheese, meat, opened canned food, or leftover food, require the cold of a refrigerator to keep them in good condition.

Fresh fruits and vegetables also retain their freshness and moistness in the icebox. Place them, after they are washed and carefully dried on the racks or in their special compartments. Lettuce and other greens keep best when stored in damp cloth bags.

Protein foods such as eggs, cheese and meat need the controlled cold of the refrigerator to keep their protein from decomposing. Uncooked meat may be left uncovered or covered lightly with waxed paper. Cooked meat should be covered. Cheese may be wrapped in a waxed paper or cloth, and covered with a thin film of butter if you expect to keep it for a long time. Keep eggs away from strong foods to prevent their porous shells from absorbing odors.

Leftover food remains usable if kept in covered containers. Canned foods will be perfectly safe to use even if left in the cans in which they come. Canned fruits keep best in their own liquid or syrup, olives best in their own brine, and pimientos will not become molded if left in the oil in which they come.

The problem of keeping an egg yolk or two after the white has been used is easily solved if you just leave the yolk in a half of a shell and cover it with the other half. Several egg yolks or several whites can be placed in a glass jar and kept well covered.

Take stock of your refrigerator frequently so no food remains there for too long a time. Even though you are careful about storage, do not expect food to retain its good condition indefinitely.

Storing Cookies, Cakes, Bread.
Crisp cookies will retain the crispness if you place them in a loosely covered tin or box to permit the free circulation of air. Soft cookies remain moist if kept in a well-covered tin or jar with an apple or slice of lemon, orange, or grapefruit to provide additional moisture. Change the fruit every several days.

Tight containers which close out the air are recommended for keeping cakes at their best freshness. Cover them with waxed paper, too.

A bread box scrupulously cleaned at least once or twice a week with soap and water, and dried thoroughly contributes in large measure to the freshness of bread.

Keep in a Cool, Dry Place:
Coffee, spices, flour and crackers need dry, cool storage in tightly covered containers since they are affected by air. Use metal or glass containers for them. When crackers get soggy, crisp them in the oven for a few minutes and they will be as good as when you bought them.

Fats which are so valuable at present should be treated with the best of care so they do not become rancid. Store them in a glass jar or crock and place in a cool, dark storeroom.

Storing in the Cellar.
You are extremely fortunate if you have a cellar for storing purposes. Now with home and defense gardening gaining in popularity, you may have vegetables to keep for later use. If the cellar tends to become warm, leave the windows open at night, closed during the day.

Cook to Save Food Values.
Poor cooking may cause the biggest kind of waste in food. Perhaps you roast your meats at too high a temperature and cause them to shrink more than necessary.

Be careful to watch temperatures and time in roasting or cooking meats. Meat, cheese, eggs and milk are all protein foods which should never be cooked too long or at too high temperature since this causes the protein fibers to become tough.

Measure water carefully when cooking vegetables so you do not have to throw any out and lose valuable minerals and vitamins into the kitchen drain. As soon as food is cooked serve it immediately as standing or overcooking causes loss in food value.

Cook with covers as much as possible except in the case of green vegetables which lose their coloring if covered. Starting the cooking of vegetables with boiling water will cut down cooking time.

Our recipe of the day is a good example of how you can combine several kinds of leftovers into one delicious main dish. The spinach may have been left over from yesterday's dinner, the shrimp from a luncheon you gave, and the bread crumbs rolled from stale bread.

Spinach Ring With Shrimp Sauce.
(Serves 6 to 8)

3 cups cooked spinach
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon black pepper
1/4 teaspoon paprika
2 eggs
3 cups cream sauce
1/2 cup fine bread crumbs
1 to 2 cups whole canned shrimp

Chop spinach fine and add grated onion which has been browned in butter. Season with salt, black pepper, paprika and add the well beaten yolks. Mix the spinach with 1/2 cups cream sauce and fold in well beaten whites. Place in a buttered ring mold and dust with bread crumbs. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate (35-degree) oven for 20 minutes. Loosen by pressing spinach from side of mold. Heat shrimp with remaining white sauce and serve in center of spinach ring.

STILL SQUAWKING

Elmer Twitchell says that when he asked the OCD for some data on gas masks the other day he got autographed photos of two movie stars and that his request for some dope on air raid shelters brought him a pamphlet on the care of baby's teeth.

Leon Henderson has put a ceiling on canned fruits and vegetables, including fruit cocktails, corn, peas, spinach, sauerkraut and tomato juice. This just about throws a protective covering around the typical American dinner these days.

Prevent the average housewife from getting those things and canned frankfurters and the husbands of America would starve to death.

QUESTION IN A CRISIS

Have we been fed on pap too many years?

Have we seen life as something on a screen?

Have platitudes and boastings stuffed our ears

To all the lessons our traditions mean?

Have we put all our faith in microphones

And only liked our music sweet and soft?

Have we insisted on the softest tones

And murmured "Don't disturb, please!" once too oft?

Have we put speeches and fine pledges first—

And in the amplifiers put our trust,

Refusing to face facts and see the worst,

And substituting "Some day" for the "Must"?

Have we thought of the world as but a play

And lightly viewed the acting and the plot?

Have we been blind and stupid all the way?

Here's hoping, deeply hoping we have not!

Sign reported over a movie house: "One Foot in Heaven and Hellzapoppin."

The lunch-room man asked Elmer Twitchell, "How many lumps?" when he ordered coffee the other day. "One in the cup," replied Mr. Twitchell, "and one to take out."

PRIORITY MOTHER GOOSE

To market, to market
To buy a fat pig
Before there's a ruling
With Henderson's "sig."

Why is it that the names of so many men in a British cabinet always sound like hotels, ointments or polo fields?

"Washington authorities explained that a deficiency in anti-aircraft ammunition such as was reported on an American warship did not necessarily mean it would fail to go off, but rather that it would go off without full force. A 30 per cent normal shell would attain a height of 10,000 feet instead of 30,000."—Newspaper Item.

Just in case that makes you feel better.

WRITE A LAST LINE TO THIS JINGLE

HERE'S WHAT YOU DO

It's simple. It's fun. Just think up a last line to this jingle. Make sure it rhymes with the word "save."

Write your last line of the jingle on the reverse side of a Raleigh package wrapper (or a facsimile thereof), sign it with your full name and address, and mail it to Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., P. O. Box 1709, Louisville, Kentucky, postmarked not later than midnight, April 4, 1942.

You may enter as many last lines as you wish, if they are all written on separate Raleigh package wrappers (or facsimiles). Prizes will be awarded on the originality and aptness of the line you write. Judges' decisions must be accepted as final. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded. Winners will be notified by mail. Anyone may enter (except employees of Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., their advertising agents, or their families). All entries and ideas therein become the property of Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corporation.

"Raleigh is the brand to get! Mild and tasty you can bet! And the coupons help you save"

HERE'S WHAT YOU WIN

You have 133 chances to win. If you send in more than one entry, your chances of winning will be that much better. Don't delay. Start thinking right now.

Crimean Peninsula

The Crimean peninsula is centrally located on the Black sea, making it a convenient market for the surrounding country, says Pathfinder. Sebastopol, a major Soviet naval base, is also a railroad center. Although the peninsula is only about the size of Vermont, it maintains a population of 750,000 inhabitants who till the rich farmland, work in the fisheries, the iron mines, and oil refineries. The climate is so mild that flowers bloom the year 'round in parts of the peninsula.

New Freight Rates On Farm Commodities

New increased freight rates on agricultural commodities are scheduled to become effective March 18, according to reports from railroads G. W. Baxter, director of transportation for the Illinois Agricultural Association, said today.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has issued an order allowing railroads to increase their freight charges in the amount of three per cent on agricultural commodities which include grain, fruits and vegetables, livestock and products of agriculture such as feeds. Rates on agricultural limestone and ground crude rock phosphate are also to be increased three percent, while most other commodities will be increased six percent. The increase authorized will be limited to the present emergency and will expire six months after the termination of the present war.

Early in December the railroads applied to the ICC for a 10 percent increase in rail and passenger rates. Extensive hearings were held in St. Louis early in January and the IAA was represented through a brief filed by the American Farm Bureau Federation.

It is expected that the freight increases will yield approximately $203,000,000 per year and the passenger fare increases already made effective are expected to yield $46,000,000 per year.

CARING FOR RUBBER

Heat, light, oils and grease are household enemies of rubber, now a vital war material. The greater the exposure to heat, the more quickly rubber weakens, cracks, and becomes sticky. Hence, rubber articles have no business near a hot stove, the furnace or register.

Sunlight combines the harmful action of both heat and light. Thus, gardeners are warned not to leave the garden hose exposed to the bright light of day, or rubbers and rubber boots to dry out on a sunny porch or near the radiator.

For storage, boots, galoshes, and other rubber articles may be stuffed loosely with paper. Hot water bottles should be thoroughly dry before being stored in the boxes in which they came. The attic is the poorest place to store rubber things; a cool place in the basement, away from the furnace heat, is the best.

JOURNALISM IN SMALL PAPERS

To meet the need for trained personnel by small town newspapers, the Medill School of Journalism of Northwestern university will inaugurate a special program of training in printing and journalism for high school graduates, Dean Kenneth E. Olson announced last Thursday.

Appeals from the National Editorial association and the Cook County Suburban Publishers association for trained apprentices to replace men drafted or attracted to other jobs led the Medill school to offer the program Dean Olson said. In September about 30 boys and girls will attend three terms of three months each, being assured jobs with rural newspapers upon the successful completion of the work. They will be taught enough printing and journalism to become advanced apprentices in small print shops and to serve as editorial assistants for weekly or small daily newspapers.

During the summer a battery of linotype machines, several platen presses, a cylinder press, and other printing equipment will be installed in a campus building for use by these students. The courses will be taught by members of the journalism faculty.

Medill is now offering an evening course in the principles and practice of hand composition for beginning printers of the Chicago area. The popularity of this course has led to the establishment of the new Newspaper Production institute, according to Dean Olson.

FANATICISM

The Portland Oregonian recently published the results of a local public poll on the subject of whether or not the drive for public ownership of power should be continued at this time. A substantial majority of the representative citizens queried said "No!" It was their belief that the socialized power drive should be dropped for the duration.

That poll is especially significant for the Oregon country, in which Bonneville Dam is located, has been the scene of an aggressive campaign to force socialized power down the throats of the people, whether they like it or not.

Any school child knows that electric power is the lifeblood of industrial production. Any school child knows that the security of this nation demands the full utilization of all the power resources of this country.

The private power industry is fully awake to its responsibility. It asks no favors. It asks only that there be an end to the political persecution which discourages management and investor alike, and makes maximum expansion impossible. It asks only the chance to do its best for the country, under strict regulation by the states and the Federal government.

The proper place of the publicly owned dams and plants in the power picture, is clear. Arms factories can locate at these dams and purchase power in large blocks. In other cases, power from the dams can be distributed over the splendid existing facilities of the private industry. Full and honest cooperation between the government and industry will protect the rights of each, and provide the country with the last possible kilowatt of electrical energy.

Those who deliberately hamstring basic industry today, serve the cause of our enemies. The political power fight is a disgraceful example of fanaticism being permitted to hamper the war effort.

DRIVERS LICENSES

The state automobile department issued a statement today reminding drivers that their current operators' licenses expire May 1. Renewals are to be made on that date to be in effect until May 1, 1945.

Renewal blanks are now available and to date approximately 700,000 drivers have sent in their application blanks. However, the department stressed the fact that current licenses are valid until the expiration date, and none of the renewed licenses will be mailed out to drivers until the deadline. The renewal blanks were issued Jan. 28 in order that the great volume of work necessitated by re-licensing more than 3,000,000 drivers might be expedited. Each application must be checked carefully, validated, given a code number, and photostated before the identifying card may be returned to the licensee.

The department requested that applicants exercise care in filling out their blanks. Of those received to date, the incidence of error has run to eight percent. This necessitates increased work in the department and slows down the flow of re-registrations.
